Carol was my 3rd grade teacher in 1972 at Park Forest Elementary School in State College. I can see her as I write this, in her polyester lavender pant suit with a white ruffle collar and her signature sea foam green eye shadow. She was a wonderful teacher and there was a moment that has stayed with me for the past 50 years. Her husband was a local police officer and one morning his cruiser pulled up to our class room door. He proceeded to bring a dog into our class room, a beagle type I think. Carol had the dog next to her and began playing the piano (I think) and singing a song which the dog evidently knew the words to. They began to sing and howl in unison with the greatest joy on both of their faces. At this moment I realized it was OK to truly love an animal. Seems silly now, and our family had dogs and cats while growing up. But this was different, she LOVED her dog. I have never forgotten that moment and I'm so sad I was never able to find her and share the impact it has had on my life. I have spent my entire adult life with wildlife and dogs and cats. I have had the pleasure of loving wolves, a coyote, a cougar, foxes of many species, Egyptian fruit bat named Rodney Dangerfield, 32 cats and 9 dogs etc. etc. My wife passed away in 2015 and at this point I have 2-turkey vultures, a red tailed hawk and a 29 year old eagle named, Col. Morgan after the Memphis Belle Pilot of ww2. Every day I spend time with him and often bury my face in his chest feathers while messaging his back-my happy place! So often I think of Mrs. Urquhart as I LOVE my eagle. I hope life was good you and that you had much joy. You gave me so much by your example. With Gratitude!Thoms NelsonMt. Bethel, Pa

I still remember when your father passed, your mother was a pillar of strength and truly an inspiration. She was a proud woman. Such a classy and always put together woman. She was so proud of her 3 daughters and wanted your lives to be filled with nothing but happiness. She devoted her life to enjoying you girls and made sure you had the very best. I always admired how wonderful a mom she was. You were blessed to have had her. She was pretty special. Continue her legacy. Be strong, be confident and always stay close. She would have wanted you girls to rely on each other during this difficult time but not let the grief keep you from moving forward and being happy. Keep her memory alive by living your dreams! She will be watching and smiling from above.

Jen, Kim and Heather, I am so sorry about Carol's passing. Carol was the light in your world but I think your mom and your dad left great legacies in you 3 to carry on! Many a tear will be shed but celebrate and honor her life with smiles and great memories. One of my favorite memories of Carol was her warm smile and great laugh! Joan Lorgus
