Angie was my best friend from the moment her oldest son Morgan came down to my house and she came looking to see to where he had wandered off to. Morgan and his baby sister Jessica took my heart away from the get go. Ang's third child Kevin hadn't been conceived at the time we first became friends, but he too capture my heart as soon as he was born and became apart of the MacDowell family. Her and I loved laughing and enjoying one another's company so much that anytime we weren't working we were together. We also, worked together some as well, she took me on some cleaning jobs with her that she had. This of course was in the late 80's & early 90's before I moved back to Texas where my parents and siblings resided. I hated leaving Syracuse because, well it meant leaving my best friends behind. We kept in touch though, but of course it wasn't the same. I'll never forget you my beautiful friend, I know though your watching out for me as well as your family and friends in town. You were such a brave and strong woman girl! I'll never forget you and the wonderful things & times we shared. Fly high with all the rest of the angels my beautiful sister in Christ! God Bless and hold your family always in His hands! I Love you all so very much!
